Are you 55 or older and looking for a job?

If you are like many older Americans who would like to return to the work force, you should know about the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP).

What is SCSEP?

The Senior Community Service Employment Program, sponsored by the Illinois Department on Aging, is a federally funded employment program designed to assist the mature worker (age 55+) in re-entering the job market. It operates under a grant from the U.S. Department of Labor under Title V of the Older Americans Act.

How does the program work?

In Illinois, the program is administered jointly by the Illinois Department on Aging through 12 Area Agencies on Aging, two non-area agency subgrantees and eight National contractors. (Both groups are listed on the back of the brochure.) The program places eligible individuals, usually for 20 hours a week at minimum wage, in non-profit agencies or community service where they receive:

- Skill acquisition or skill enhancement opportunities;
- Personal and employment-related counseling; and
- Assistance in the transition to unsubsidized employment, where feasible.

What are the goals of the program?

- To provide retraining and employment opportunities to older workers.
- To offer services to the community as a whole by placing the program participants in community service agencies.
- To serve as an advocate for all older workers seeking employment.
- To serve as a liaison between employers seeking to hire older employees and the older worker.

Types of community services:

The program creates temporary positions that contribute to the general welfare of the community. Typically SCSEP clients are offered positions in:

- schools;
- hospitals;
- senior citizen centers;
- literacy instruction;
- nutrition programs;
- beautification projects;
- conservation projects;
- restoration projects;
- day care centers; and
- many other opportunities.

Who is eligible?

Anyone who is 55 years of age or older, has a limited income (a figure set by the U.S. Department of Labor at not more than 125 percent of the poverty level) and is capable of performing tasks involved in the proposed community service assignment is eligible to be enrolled in the program.

What benefits are offered?

- Annual physical exam;
 - Job-related counseling;
 - Paid work experience;
- also (optional)
- Paid personal leave;
 - Paid holidays; and
 - Paid vacation.
